THE GROWTH OF BEAUMONT.

The City is Extending Into the Suburbs and the Suburbs are Broadening Out—Along the Picturesque Neches.

In order to get an idea of the growth of Beaumont, one must stroll or drive through the principal streets into the suburbs. In every direction, new buildings are going up, especially in the southern and southwestern part of the city. These improvements extend along Pearl street, Orleans and Sabine streets, and the intersecting streets, as far as the city limits, and beyond. The suburbs, for at least two miles beyond the city limits, are growing, and many fine residence buildings and cottages have recently been built and are under course of construction. This is partly owing to the natural growth of the city, and partly to the prospects of an electric road system traversing that section. Business men of the city are building houses in the country, which, when the road is finished, can be reached in a few minutes after the business hours of the day are over. While the residence portion of the city is extending into the suburbs, business houses are also extending toward the present city limits. It may be safely estimated that at least one hundred houses are being built in that portion of the city and in the country within a radius of three miles from the city limits. In the city we note a few improvements in order to give the reader a general idea of what is going on:

On the southwest corner of Sabine and College streets a two story frame business house has just been completed, and on College street, near Orleans, another frame store was finished a few days ago. As a further indication of improvement along College street, the ties and rails of the coming electric road have been placed in position and grading will soon commence.

A two story frame dwelling has recently been finished on Washington, near Sabine. Four cottages are being built on Milam, near Orleans, and two cottages are nearly completed on Franklin west of Orleans.

Five cottages have just been finished on Austin, west of Sabine and two cottages are being built on Emmet avenue, near Pearl. Several houses, residences and stores are also being built on the extension of Pearl street, near the Neches river.

Mr. G. C. O'Brien is building an extension to his fine residence on the picturesque banks of the Neches. A two-story residence is being built on Washington, near Neches street, and several cottages are also being built in that immediate neighborhood.

A two story frame addition is being made to the county hospital and is nearly finished.

Track laying on the electric road is progressing rapidly along the line and the vicinity of the Shell station shows signs of activity in the building of cottages, and improvements on other houses. This point, where the road turns in the direction of the fields, is one of the prettiest spots on the beautiful Neches. Along the banks of this heavily shaded and pretty stream are a number of booths, or arbors, where the residents in that favored section seek the refreshing breezes that continually blow fresh from the Gulf. There are a number of house boats on the Neches, used by traders and fishermen. Some of the residents along the river have pleasure boats, in which they take outings of evenings, or in the early hours of the morning, before the sun begins to do its worst. With such advantages and picturesque surroundings, it is not surprising that this pretty and pleasant section should be thickly settled with fine, elegant houses.

GOOD WORK FOR BEAUMONT.

Mr. T. W. Shepherd has returned from Cripple Creek, Col., where he went as a delegate to the Trans-Mississippi Commercial congress to further the interests of Beaumont. Mr. Shepherd and the other Beaumont delegates arrived there a little late and the result was that they were seriously handicapped in getting the proper attention from the committee on resolutions. In fact, if it had not been for the indefatigable efforts of Mr. Shep-

Disease Germs

The most dangerous impurities in drinking water are the so-called Disease Germs. The best authorities hold that certain diseases known as Zymotic Diseases are propagated or transmitted by a peculiar of low organisms which find their way into the system through channels of air, food and water. Of these diseases malarial fever, typhoid fever, scarlet fever, cholera and diphtheria are the notable. It is believed by many who have studied these subjects that typhoid fever, scarlet fever and diphtheria will never attack those who habitually use for all purposes properly filtered water. As regards the most dangerous impurities of all disease germs nothing short of an efficient mechanical filter will serve to remove them. They cannot be killed by water boiling under ordinary conditions, for the best authorities (Lex. Sanderson, Tyndall and others) place their death point as high as 230 degrees Fahrenheit. Water boils at 212 degrees, consequently they are left alive and kicking after all ordinary culinary operations.

Buy one of our filters and you are sure it is the only remedy to lead to good health, long life and a certainty of success.
